

Dear Chancellor,

In many ways your legacy of achievement is secure and I congratulate you. In one area, however, specifically the creation of a School of Journalism, you have an unprecedented opportunity to leave an even deeper imprint

Merge student media with the School of Journalism

Act boldly to embrace teaching of “new media” as the school’s primary mission

As a former daily newspaper editor I have always tried to consider Ole Miss journalism graduates for job openings; unfortunately, far too often for my tastes, I found applicants lacking the skills needed to succeed in a competitive news environment. When I left the daily newspaper business

As a member of the Ole Miss Journalism Advisory Committee I have participated in meeting after meeting where much is discussed and little is done. I and other members of the committee were amazed to learn at our November meeting that a journalism faculty member
